Program Overview

The Academic Skills Training (AST) program assesses your academic strengths and weaknesses to help improvement in basic math, English and science skills for college-level course placement, qualification for reclassification or advance training, and military advancement. The self-paced online course can be used by service members as a standalone course, or as a supplement to other educational resources. The individual learning paths improve your knowledge of the concepts and the skills you need to excel in each area; lessons are supported by interactive drills and practice sets, followed by quizzes to help you gauge your progress. Plus, the program has some great features like:

- Academic Help Desk
- Online Video Tutoring
- Mobile App for use anytime and anywhere

NOTE: The College Placement Skills Training (CPST) course is being phased out; however, if a member has already started the course, he/she will be able to finish the course.

ArmyIgnitED Transition

As of 7 April 2022, the ArmyIgnitED Program Management office transitioned to Program Executive Office Enterprise Information Systems (PEO EIS) assigning PEO EIS as the responsible office for managing ArmyIgnitED. PEO EIS is leveraging Government off-the Shelf (GOTS) technology used to support the Air Force Automated Education Management System (AFAEMS) to establish the new ArmyIgnitED 2.0 system. This system will allow the Army to deliver improved functionality with a streamlined tuition assistance process by 30 September 2022 and to achieve full operational capability by the spring of 2023. By January 2023, Scholarship Cadets will be able to use the system for the spring semester.

The current ArmyIgnitED 1.0 will remain online until the Army's AFAEMS system, ArmyIgnitED 2.0 is deployed. All stakeholders will continue to use the current system until further guidance.

We appreciate your continued support. We will provide instructions for all changes in procedures and processes impacting all sets of users in advance of the change. ACCESS will be messaging our EI partners as well to inform them of this change.
